Rankin County Sheriff's Office Trusty/Work Release Program

Our goal is to help inmates receive the necessary training, tools, and resources while being incarcerated to help them re-enter back into society so that they can be productive citizens when they are released.

Purpose of the Work Release Program

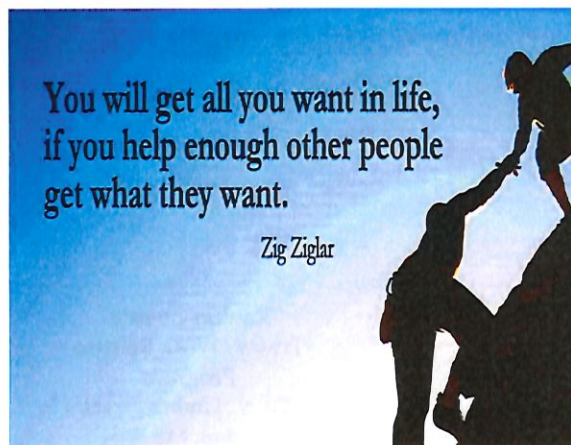

The Work Release Program provides eligible individuals with the opportunity for employment in the community during their last year of incarceration. It allows participants to provide a valued service to the community, satisfy financial obligations (i.e. court fees, fines, child support, etc.), help support their families, and build a financial base which will be needed upon release. Participants in the Work Release Program will be better equipped financially and socially to successfully transition back into the community. We believe this program will make them well-rounded citizens in all aspects of their life and keep them from returning to prison.

You Have to Earn It!

It is a privilege to be able to participate in the Work Release Program as well as the Trusty Program itself. It is designed primarily to help participants become reestablished in the community in good financial standing. The Work Release Program teaches them how to handle their money in a responsible way and how to properly manage their banking account.
